

Day time care – North Somerset – Solo Code PPI

Does your current job give you enough “job satisfaction” ? If not, read on.

I am looking for Personal assistants to support me in my own home during the day. I require 24/7 support from my team of carers, family and friends. My health care is complex and managed with medication. I like to be very active and enjoy physical activities on a daily basis. I have a good sense of humour and a very warm smile and am very affectionate towards people I like.

The ideal candidate will have previous experience in a Health and Social Care setting, although the right attitude might be a good place to start. You must also be able to demonstrate a high level of professionalism and integrity, promoting my independence and respect my home. You will be required to support me with all aspects of my daily routine.

The successful candidate must be flexible and take on a practical ‘can do’ attitude towards all aspects of my care. As a good communicator you will have the ability to complete all tasks where necessary. You will need to use your initiative and insight to be a part of my team and work effectively. You will need to liaise with your team leader, my family, my Provider and several other health professions involved in my life.

You will be required to complete training which will enable you to support me with all aspects of my daily life. It will be a requirement to support me with personal care, dressing as well as completing domestic duties within my home and assisting me to go out and about as required. You will be expected to build an open and trusting relationship with me as an individual and learn how to communicate with me effectively.

The role is will be paid at £9.75 per hour, it needs to be flexible to meet my needs. Full training will be provided as necessary.

Ideal qualities:

Car drivers in order for me to access the community. Preferably holding a full, clean, UK driving license and non-smokers.

Closing date 10th September 2018. Interviews will be held on Thursday 20th September
